Boomerang Center

This center uses visual, auditory learning.

To play, shuffle the cards and distribute them to your students. You must distribute all cards (some players may have more than one card). Any player can begin by reading a question to the group. Players look to see if they have then answer to the question read. The player with the correct answer reads it and then reads the question from their card. When play returns to the first player, the game ends.

Use a stopwatch and see how quickly the circle can be completed. Write the “Best Time” on the board. You can play the game over and over—you can shuffle and re-distribute the cards several times during one class period.

I have used this same game for Math vocabulary and States and Capitals.
